4. Revenue Scotland tries to operate to Adam Smith's principle of certainty for the tax payer about their tax liability. How easy will it be to be sure of the tax due on each load of waste fines disposed of to landfill under the new guidance?

Paragraph 1.2 of the draft guidance states waste fines that originate from a waste producer that accepts both non-qualifying and qualifying waste inputs may qualify for the lower rate of SLfT, if the material has been subjected to a satisfactory treatment process. Whilst the guidance provides examples of the type of treatment process that could produce qualifying fines, a degree of ambiguity remains as to what, other than the examples quoted, would constitute a satisfactory treatment process. This could lead to the landfill site operator, the waste producer and Revenue Scotland reaching different conclusions about the tax liability of waste from a process. Our suggestion would be to provide a mechanism for waste producers and/or landfill site operators to agree the tax liability of fines from particular processes with Revenue Scotland in order to provide increased certainty.

5. Part 8 of the guidance on Lol test methodology includes instruction to use a sample size of 5g. This sample size has been chosen because a larger one could risk incomplete combustion and therefore affect the Lol result.

Do you agree that specifying a sample size of 5g will lead to fair and consistent Lol test results?

As we are not directly involved in the operation of landfill sites we are not able to comment on this question.

6. The frequency of testing table at part 12 of the guidance explains how certain indicators should be used to determine how frequently Lol tests should be carried out on waste fine streams.

Do you agree that the table supports a fair and consistent approach to the classification of waste?
Yes. The proposed frequency of testing is in line with that undertaken in the rest of the UK. This will help to ensure a consistent approach, and avoid distortion of competition, as well as providing stakeholders with a familiar process, which will help to minimise errors or inadvertent non-compliance.

7. Do you have any other comments you would like to make about this guidance?

Yes ☐ No ☒

If you ticked ‘yes’, please provide your comments or suggestions:
